Profile
I commenced my career in construction as a time served joiner, then progressing through a role in site engineering, into construction and then project management. Following this, I focussed on project delivery via planning/project management roles on the contracting side of construction.

I now work on the consultancy side of construction, where I utilise, my extensive experience in varied roles, across a range of sectors and different forms of contracts, to assist the client in the successful delivery of their Projects

I am a highly self-motivated and a thoroughly passionate construction professional. I have excellent organisational skills, combined with an astute problem-solving ability, obtained from working on numerous large scale complicated and challenging new and refurbishment projects.
