Royal Liverpool University Hospital

Design manager for the new £335 million Royal Liverpool University Hospital and Clinical Sciences Support Building. The 13 storey hospital building comprises of 93,000m2 of internal floor space, 646 single ensuite bedrooms, 18 operating theatres, a critical care unit together with clinical spaces and a sky restaurant on the top floor. The clinical sciences building is a 5 storey support facility for the main hospital encompassing specialist laboratories, medical engineering and logistics and linked to it via an enclosed bridge.

Due to the scale of this major project, works were split and managed through a package model, my principal areas included the close co-ordination with the clients team in the management of the internal facilities, the co-ordination and management of the design for accessibility and taking a lead in fire compliance.
