Summary

Family, friends and colleagues describe me as a hardworking, social and sporty person. People see me as a person who gets energized from success and person growth. By evaluating my development on a regular basis, I have a clear image of what I can and what I want to achieve in both personal and professional live. Mediocrity, inefficiency and unreliability are things I prefer to stay away from.

As a sportsman I enjoy to get the best out of myself and out of a team, both on the sport field and in my professional life. Within teams I like to share my opinion in a positive way, with enthusiasm and with different ideas. Although I am a team player, I like to act independent as well. As an independent person, I like to rely myself on facts. Finally, my friends say that I am a good listener as well. By analyzing their ideas and opinions I often create new angles on situations.
